THE CUT of $84,000 in the Veterans Affairs Commission budget for the next biennium over what the Legislature had authorized for the current biennium, will work a severe hardship upon disabled veterans, their widows and their children, in securing benefits that they are entitled to by the Federal Government as a result of their service in three wars. There are approximately 250 thousand veterans in Texas who are in need of help in processing their claims, securing hospitalization which they are not, for lack of background and sometimes education, able to handle on their own.

Since World War II this splendid program has been financed by the Counties of Texas that employ County Service Officers and the State of Texas that appropriates money for the operation of the Veterans Affairs Commission, and the Veterans Organizations of this State that spend a considerable amount in this field. These services are not duplications but are really a cooperative effort on the part of several groups to do an excellent job for those veterans in our state who need our assistance.

The slashing of $84,000 from the budget by the House of Representatives, will be a blow to the veteran who needs our help. We are unable to understand why the cut was made.—Says G. Ward Moody, Editor of the Texas Legion News.

Your Home Towners would like to say that The Veterans Affairs Commission here in McKinney as well as over the state of Texas has meant a lot to our veterans and especially are we proud of the wonderful work and leadership of Frank Davis, our County Service Officer in Collin County. And how well do we remember what this great organization has done and will do for maintaining our own Veterans Hospital here in McKinney and the far reaching work and assistance that they are giving our Veterans and their dependants. In our way of thinking "let's not curtail the work of the Veterans Affairs Commission but let's increase what is necessary to do a better job for those men that have given so much for you and I. It's our way of saying, "thank you."

Mrs. Edith Wilder, Mrs. Roxie Dixon, Mrs. Ethel Hortner, visited their mother, Mrs. John Turner, Wednesday.

Former Celina Banker Foils Holdup Effort

An attemped holdup of the Parker Street Bank in Wichita Falls, was thwarted Wednesday noon when the president, C. B. Johnson, snatched the man's pistol, clubbed him over the head with it and held him until officers arrived.

Johnson acted after an employee notified him the man was holding a gun on teller O. B. Johnson, the president's brother.

Police and the FBI arrested Earl Thomas Lee, about 43, a city fire department employee.

Charges were being prepared.

Johnson gave this account.

Lee approached the teller's window of the suburban bank with a long barreled .22 revolver and demanded $5,000. The teller talked loudly, told him he didn't have that much money and slowly counted out several hundred dollars from $15,000 he had in a drawer.

Mrs. Neta Sampley called the bank president who approached Lee from behind, grabed his weapon and slugged him to the floor with three blows, and told him if he moved, I'll kill you."

Police and FBI agents arrived within five minutes.

Johnson was several years president of the Celina State Bank, selling out his interest there about a year ago and moving to Wichita Falls.

He was a former president of the Collin County Bankers Association.

County Fund Drive For Red Cross Lagging

According to K. J. O'Brien, chairman finance committee, the 1957 Collin County Red Cross Fund Drive is now in its final stages and some towns in the county have been unable to complete their drives or reach their assigned quotas. The City of McKinney has completed its drive for this organization through its United Fund Campaign. Individuals who wish to participate in this drive in other towns in Collin County are asked to send their contribution to their local chairman or send them directly to the Collin County American Red Cross Chapter, Court House, McKinney, Texas. This local area will receive credit for all such donations. Citizens of McKinney or any local community who wish to make an additional contribution to this organization to assist in tornado disaster relief may forward their contributions to the McKinney office. It is estimated that the cost of American Red Cross tornado disaster relief in Anna and Melissa alone will exceed the total American Red Cross funds collected in this county this year. The smaller towns and rural areas have in the past two years given full support to this drive and through the combined efforts of all the quotas for this year can be met.

School Trustees Gives Thanks For Bond Election

Taxpayers of the McKinney Independent School District desire to thank the many clubs and organizations and the hundreds of individuals through whose efforts the recent school bond election carried so successfully. It would be impossible to thank each of you personally, so we take this means to express our gratitude. The bonds authorized by that election allows us to put in motion a constructive program for better schools in McKinney.

The program presented to you was the result of weeks of study, not only by your school board and its administrative staff, but also by engineers, architects and bond experts. It was a program that we felt would most nearly meet our present and future school needs and yet one which would not place an undue burden on the taxpayers. We attempted, as best we knew how, to place all of the facts before you, the taxpayer, so that when you voteed you did so with the full knowledge of the facts.

The bond election has carried, but this is only the beginning of the great task. It shall be our policy to continue to give you all of the facts. The school board, and the entire school system, invites you active interest in the affairs of your schools. The meetings of the board of trustees are always open meetings, its minutes are public property and the educational program of our school system should be of vital interest to every parent. We have always encouraged the citizens of our School District to attend meetings of the board of trustees and to visit schools.

The overwhelming majority given to the passage of the bond election evidenced that the people of McKinney want better schools. Your school board takes this vote as a mandate and our every effort shall be directed to this end. The leadership and support which you demonstrated in the election has shown that we in McKinney can all work together in the common goal of educating our young people—our citizens of tomorrow.

Respectfully,
Board of Trustees
McKinney Independent School District

NEW GUIDE FOR CONTROLLING HOUSEHOLD INSECTS.

Insect activity usually increases as the weather becomes warmer. Flies, ants, mosquitoes, moths and other insects endanger bhealth, feed on fabrics, contaminate food and are general nuisance. Up-to-date control measures are needed to fight these insects. A new leaflet compiled by extension entomologists offers directions for choosing and applying insecticides.

The new bulletin, "Texas Guide for Controlling Household insects," classifies all major pests except the termite into specific categories relating to type of damage. Insects are illustrated for easy identification, and concise control measures are given for each insect. Also listed are some important cautions to observe in using insecticides.

Copies of the "Texas Guide for Controlling Household Insects" are available from your county extension agent's office.

UNUSUAL EASTER EGGS

Coloring eggs is traditional at the Easter Season. An unusual but beautiful way to decorate the egg is the method used by the people of the Ukraine, according to Lucille Moore, extension recreation specialist. This is the most prized art of their home craft culture.

The eggs may be blown or sucked out or they may be hard cooked. The decoration is achieved by using beeswax or paraffin wax as a resist to the dye and various color dyes. A lettering or broad-point pen can be used successfully. The pen point is warmed in the open flame and dipped in melted wax. The design on the egg, usually thin-lined geometric pattern, is applied in wax. The egg is then dipped in the lightest color dye to be used. The entire egg will be colored with the exception of those portions covered with wax. When dye is dry the design can be carried further and then dipped in darker shade. This can continue to give as many colors as desired, but because the designs are of fine lines three or four colors ought to be sufficient. Keep in mind the surface covered with the wax will be the color of the last dye not the next one.

When the design and dipping are finished the eggs are warmed and the wax rubbed off. Easter egg dyes are good. Crepe paper, soaked to remove color, makes a satisfactory dye. A little vinegar added to the water in which the paper was soaked, helps set the color.

FOR YOUNGSTERS

Hard cooked eggs, bowls or dye and crayons will suffice. Draw designs with the crayon, then dip in color. The crayon may or may not be removed.

PART TIME FARMING INCREASING

During the last ten years, Texas farmers and ranchmen, like farmers and ranchmen in other parts of the country, have made a number of adjustments to the high weather risk and price uncertainties in agriculture. One type of adjustment has been to leave agriculture for some other type of work. Another has been the combination of agricultural work with off-farm work.

While the number of farms in the State has decreased from half a million in 1935 to less than one-third of a million in 1954, the number of farm operators who work away from the farm 100 days or more each year has doubled. The number jumped from 45,000 in 1935 to over 90,000 in 1954.

The trend to increased off-farm employment has been facilitated by improved roads, a shorter work week in industry and a continued high level of employment and industrial development. The trend to off-farm employment is more intensive within a radius of 50 miles of cities and industries in rural areas where part-time employment opportunities are available. This adjustment constitutes a significant income stabilizing factor for many farm families, permitting them to weather the drouth and the cost-factor for many farm families, families, permitting them to weather the drouth and the cost-price squeeze without giving up their farm enterprise.

The combination of agricultural employment with non-agricultural work may be expected to continue increase during the next few years.

FINENESS — A COTTON QUALITY FACTOR

In recent years, fineness has become a quality factor of increasing importance. Fineness is weight per linear inch, fine fibers having a lower weight per inch, coarse fibers having a greater weight. Fine fiber in the short and medium staple lengths may indicate immaturity and possible future processing difficulties. The mixing of fiber from bales with a relatively narrow range in fineness, sixtenths micrograms per inch, has given mills increased operating efficiency and a more uniform product. Purchases based on fineness specifications avoid cotton not adapted to specific mill requirements.

Ninety percent of the cotton now sold to the domestic mills and export trade is based on a specified fineness.

Collin A&M Student To Make Field Trip Near Kerrville

Thirty-four range and forestry students at Texas A. and M. College will take part in a field trip to the Kerrville area April 25-26.

Don Huss, intructor in the Department of Range & Forestry, will conduct the field trip, said the two days will be spent visiting ranches and other areas practicing good conservation.

Joe McEntire, work unit conservationist, and Tom Shifflet, range specialist, of the Soil Conservation Service in Kerrville, have arranged the tour of visits, Huss said.

The group will visit the Adam Wilson ranch to study proper stocking, rotational deferment and brush control. Mrs. Wilson's brush control program is unique in that he clears brush in strips, leaving uncut areas for deer protection and food, Huss said.

After leaving the Wilson ranch the group will visit the Kerr Wildlife Management Area of the Texas Fish and Game Commission, where a grazing study comparing the influence of heavy, moderate and light grazing on deer production and range recovery is under way. Here also, the students will see comparative effects of bulldozing, cut-and-pile and flat cutting as mehods of cedar control.

Next on the list of areas to be visited is the Boy Scouts of America's Alamo Council ranch (formerly the Frederick and later the Rickenbacher ranch) which is famous for its exotic collection of deer and antelope from all over the world.

This ranch is of interest to the students primarily because it recently has started a program of control for shin-oak and second-growth cedar, and includes proper stocking, deferment and game management, Huss says.

The final stop of the two-day trip will be at the G. W. Kane Ranch at Mountain Home. Mr. Kane practices range re-seeding, brush control, proper stocking and control of rainfall runoff, using both brush dams and grass ever. Here also, the class will study economics of range management, the benefits of proper vs. improper management, adaptability of various classes of livestock to varying ranch conditions, range condition classification, and methds fr preventin, and methods for prevention of rangeland erosion. Orville C. Lindsey of this city is among the students making the trip.

Dillon Anderson Is Dinner Speaker At Fort Worth Affair

Mr. and Mrs. Joe Anderson, of this city, accompanied their son, Hon. Dillon Anderson, wife and daughter, Miss Betsy Anderson, of Houston, to Fort Worth Monday night where they attended the sixth annual dinner sponsored by the Ft. Worth Chapter National Conference of Christians and Jews, Inc.

The affair was held in the Texas Hotel, honoring Bernard J. Lunt "a man dedicated to the establishment of a social order in which the religious ideals of Brotherhood and Justice shall become the standards of Human Relations."

Mr. Anderson, a prominent Houston attorney, was the guest speaker for the evening.

The National Conference of Christians and Jews is a civic organization engaged in a nation-wide program of human relations. It enlists Protestants, Catholics and Jews who, without compromise of conscience or of their distinctive and important religious differences, work together to build better relations among men of all religions. Its operation is civic and social although, obviously, the roots which it seeks to build are in the moral law and religious faith.

West Collin Towns Elect Councilmen

Celina voters gave a plurality to Senatorial Candidate Ralph Yarborough in both boxes and elected J. C. Ownsby and Perry Gearhart to the city council. Neither Ownsby nor Gearhart had opposition.

In the city election, 109 votes were cast, each candidate receiving 108. One voter "scratched" both names.

In Prosper, which has the commission form of government, U. N. Clary, long-time mayor, was re-elected without opposition, as were Roy Skelton and D. C. Reece, also unopposed for re-election as commissioners. The city government is administered by a mayor and two commissioners.

In Frisco it was an off year for city elections, and none was held. Benton Staley is the mayor of that town, which also has the commission form of government.

Nelda Sue Joslin has been ill at her home in Burrow recently.

LETTERS FROM...

THE PEOPLE

I wish to thank those who voted for me in the school-trustee election. I had to make the race, people would have regarded me as a quitter had I not placed my name before them as a possible trustee, after having so much to do with the school controversy last year. I had no wishes to get in this race, but had I been elected I would have given my best toward economy of operation of our schools as well as the construction of the projected new school buildings.

Plano Wins District Game With Farmers

H. O. Gann's Farmersville High Farmers inability to hit in pinches, and a few costly errors, gave the Plano Wildcats a 6 to 1 win in a 10A District baseball opener played at Plano last Thursday. The regular scheduled game was set for Friday, but had to be moved up.

Baseball Gets Underway In Collin County

The West Zone Champion Alla Black Cats placed three men on the 1957 All-District 42-B basketball team selected by coaches in the district and sponsored by Radio Station KMAE. Celina and Prosper had one player each on the mythical quintet.

The second team was equally divided between the five schools in the loop, each placing one man.

Ray Pinnion of Celina and Joe Svoboda of Alla were the only unanimous selections for the first team.

No effort was made to place the players by positions they usually play. The five boys receiving the largest number of votes were placed on the first team and the next five in the voting were named on the second team. Others named were given honorable mention.

Local Brothers On Winning Golf Team

KERRVILLE — H. D. Wysong and D. H. Wysong, sons of Dr. and Mrs. H. D. Wysong of McKinney, Texas., are members of the Schriener Institute high school golf team.

Defeating Texas Military Institute of San Antonio in its first 1957 matches, Schreiner saw the potential of a good high school golf team being composed by Coach Ronald Davis.

H. D. Wysong (Dud) number one player on the team, lost medalist honors in this first competition but salvaged one point and D. H. Wysong (Dan) blanked his opponent, 3-0, to give Schreiner the margin of victory 7-5.

Wysong fired a two over par 74 to capture medalist honors and blanked his opponent, 3-0. Dan won 2-1 and now is 4 up on opponents in match play, 5-1.

Due to inclement weather, the affair was held in the basement blue room at the Mitchell home. The centerpiece for the picnic table was a three foot toy lion and a basketball centered on a blue runner over a white cloth. Blue and white streamers about the room completed the decoration.

Coaches Rusty Talbot and Barney Newton were presented gifts by the teams, and grey and blue letter jackets were distributed. Those lettering in basketball are as follows: J. F. Collin Reared Boy Is Successful Oil Man In Houston —Courtsey Houston Chronicle.

J. SAYLES LEACH

In a recent issue of the Houston Chronicle, an article and picture of J. Sayles Leach was published under the caption "Neighbor of note — Home in Houston Lures Oilman Leach." Written by Saul Friedman of the Chronicle Staff, the item is of much interest to relatives and friends in Collin County where Mr. Leach was reared. We reproduce it in the Daily Courier-Gazette and Democrat-Gazette for the benefit of our readers:

J. Sayles Leach, former head of the Texas Co. might have this to say about being a neighbor in Houston:

"How're you goin' to keep 'em down in New York once they've lived in Houston?"

• • •

Back Home.

After nine years in the Eastern metropolis, helping to run one of the world's largest oil companies, J. Sayles Leach, now 65, came back to Houston last October, and although he still makes trips around the country he says, "Houston is and always has been my home."

He was born near Allen and worked hard on the Collin County farm of his grandfather, who reared him. But work didn't keep him from studying to go to college.

He began at Baylor University in 1911, and during his time there he lettered in football, then emerged in 1915 with a bachelr of Arts.

Although oil rigs were rising on the landscape of Texas at the time, young Leach chose a railroad and went to work for Missouri - Kansas Texas in the accounting office in Dallas.

But the smell of oil was not too far off and like a siren it lured Leach to a job as a salesman in the Texas Co. office in Dallas in September 1916.

No Horatio Alger.

Unlike Horatio Alger he didn't save the banker's daughter on a runaway horse but he took hold of the rein of hard work, and his curious mind and aggressive initiative soon found him rising in the company.

He worked in the boom towns as a sales agent and met difficulties head on. In 1925 he became superintendent of sales in the Dallas district. In 1927 he found his home at last when he came to Houston as assistant manager of sales in the Southern Division. Two years later he was manager.

In 1938 he was elected vice-president; and in 1950 he moved to New York and subsequently was elected president of the company. In 1953 he became chairman of the board of directors.

Last October, having reached 65, Leach retired and returned to Houston to the home at 2207 River Oaks Blvd., that he and his wife had kept up while in New York.

About his retirement as chairman of the board, Mrs. Leach says, "You can't go up any more than that. So he retired."

• • •

Still Has Office.

Although he has no formal position for the company, an office is still maintained in Houston. He is still active in many phases of the oil business and he has many civic and business responsibilities.

He has been a member of the board of directors of the National Bank of Commerce for years, and he was elected as chairman of the advisory committee a few months ago.

He has been active with the Chamber of Commerce, is a trustee at Baylor, and is a member of the board of governors of Rice Institute.

He and his wife have two daughters, Mrs. Bryan Forister, of Houston, Mrs. C. W. Stephenson of San Marcos, and three grandchildren.

Revision In Grades Victory For Collin Wheat Growers

Revision in grade standards for wheat is a major victory for wheat farmers and will materially benefit growers in this area, according to Gerald Furr of Rhea Mill, president of the Collin County Farm Bureau.

The county farm leader said that the United States Department of Agriculture followed recommendations of the American Farm Bureau Federation "to the letter" in changing the official standards. He added that the recommendations were based on wheat farmers' belief that the government's grading system should encourage production of quality grain, and maintenance of quality as wheat moves through trade channels.

The new official standards for wheat become effective June 15.

In general the new standards reduce the limits on foreign material, shrunken and broken kernels and other classes of wheat in Grade 2. They increase the minimum limits of dark, hard, and vitreous kernels in the subclass hard winter wheat from "more than 25 per cent" to 40 per cent.

The USDA announced that there will be no changes in the method of expressing dockage which will continue to be in terms of whole percentage points, or in the present method of evaluating smutty wheat. The limits of moisture for the special grade "tough wheat" are unchanged for all classes.

Armament Building Dedication Honors Late Major Dowdy

Relatives and friends in McKinney were pleased recently to learn of the dedication of the new armament and electronics building in California, honoring the late Major Robert D. Dowdy, who was killed in a B-47 bomber explosion on February 12, 1955. Major Dowdy was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Dowdy of San Diego, California, and a nephew of Judge W. C. Dowdy, Ernest Dowdy, Russell Dowdy, Mrs. Lela Wilson and Mrs. Maggie Talkington, all of McKinney.

The civilians invited to attend the dedication included the Mayor of San Diego, Hon. Charles C. Dial, Major Dowdy's widow and three children, and his parents.

Military officials included Colonels Robert B. Miller, 12th Air Division Commander; Burton C. Andrus, Jr., Base Commander; and Pinkham Smith, 22nd Bomb Wing Commander.

The Major was killed when the B-47 bomber exploded in the Canadian wilds on the above mentioned date, tossing the aircraft commander and the pilot into the frozen stratosphere. Major Dowdy, observer on the flight, was the only man killed in the accident.

The plaque bearing the dedication inscription was unveiled in the main quarter of the building. The 523rd Air Force Band played. Six non-commissioned officers from both the 22nd A & E Squadron and the 19th Bomb Squadron formed a 12-man honor flight.

The new A & E Dowdy Hall was designed to provide adequate facility for armanent and electronics equipment repairs and adjustments. It was completed February 4, this year.

Collin Lagging In Red Cross Fund Campaign

Mrs. Leah Williams, executive secretary of the Collin County Chapter, American Red Cross, reported today that Collin County is short approximately $3,500.00 on its 1957 fund drive. Total goal for this year, states Mrs. Williams, is $14,671.00, the largest quota since World War II, which has been brought about as a result of the tremendous number of disasters throughout the United States during the past year and a half, and the increased costs of supplies for chapter program operations of the local chapter.

With tornadoes striking in all parts of Texas and other states in the nation, Mrs. Williams expressed concern over the lagging campaign in Collin County. She reported many families in Collin County have been affected by the Tuesday tornadoes, two houses destroyed in Melissa and many damaged. Two destroyed in Anna with many more damaged. She reports she has been working in Melissa and Anna trying to contact people who were affected in both of the towns. She was in both towns Tuesday following the tornadoes and was taken thoroughout the areas by Collin County Sheriff, Floyd Williams, and was able to talk with many of those families who had suffered damage in the tornado.

Mrs. Williams expressed sincere thanks for the whole-hearted cooperation of Sheriff Williams and his staff. She returned Wednesday and worked in both towns throughout the day. She advises that the local chapter is taking applications on those people affected who do not have sufficent insurance and other resources to meet their needs and suggests that any who have not filed applications to call at the Red Cross office in the County Courthouse and file their application. These applications will be given thorough consideration by a committee of business men who will screen all applications to determine need.

Mrs. Williams reports that the Collin County Chapter has given emergency relief to some families who have been located or who have reported to the chapter office for emergency relief during the emergency period. The chapter had workers in both Melissa and Anna Wednesday putting temporary emergency covering on houses in need of emergency protection to household belonging. She states the work is slow because she has been working without outside help but hopes to have National staff here Thursday and Friday to assist her in the operation.

The Red Cross needs every dollar asked for in the 1957 fund campaign, states Mrs. Williams, and she urges concerted efforts on the part of fund campaign chairmen to see that all people are given a chance to contribute. She states that anyone who has not been contacted may mail their contribution to the American Red Cross, Courthouse, McKinney, Texas, and the contributors donation will be credited to the respective towns fund quota.

Farmers Urged To Begin Control Of Bagworms Now

Now would be a good time to start controlling bagworms, since there was a large carry over from last summer according to Wayne Cranfill, Associate County Agent.

The female bagworm lays her eggs inside the silken sac and attaches bits of leaves to the sac as it feeds. The female crawls out and dies after laying eggs inside bag during the latter part of summer.

The silken sac that are hanging from limbs of trees at the present time contains the bagworm eggs that will be hatching out in late spring or early summer. The silken bags should be picked from the trees and burned now, to prevent them from hatching and destroying the leaves on the trees later on.

If insecticides are needed to be used later in the summer for control of bagworms, use Chlordane, 40% wettable power, 1½ ounces to 5 gallons of water; Toxaphene, 40% wettable powder, 4 ounces to 5 gallons of water or Lead Arsenate, using 2½ ounces to 5 gallons of water. Any one of these three insecticides will do an effective job in controlling bagworms after they are hatched.

If more information is needed call for bulletin L-199, Texas Guide for Controling Insects on Ornamental Plants, from the County Agent's Office in McKinney.

Collin County Farm Women To Observe National HD Week

Collin County Home Demonstration Women will celebrate National Home Demonstration Week, April 28 to May 4th. The Home Demonstration Clubs throughout the month of April will emphasize the slogan of Home Demonstration Week "Christian Homes—The hope of the Nation" at each of the meetings. The week will be climaxew with a meeting on better homes to be held at the Collin County Bank here in McKinney.

More than 6½ million homemakers, who take part in home demonstration work throughout America, will observe the 12th National Home Demonstration Week from April 28 to May 4.

What is Home Demonstration Work? It is an educational program planned by homemakers and conducted cooperatively by the Extension Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, the landgrant coleges, and county governments. Through the program, families learn to apply the latest approved methods developed by home economics research. The general aim is to strengthen home and family life by helping women become more efficient homemakers and more effective citizens in their communities, States, and Nation.

Women play a vital role in maintaining the home. They do most of the family buying and exert a major influence on the character and personality of family members. Today the margin between income and cost of necessities — food, clothing, and shelter —is small for most families, so improved living depends upon expert management of resources. In the rapidly changing pattern of modern living, homemakers need an up-to-date, reliable source of information that will help them in solving problems of the family and community. Home demonstration work is designed to meet that need.

The program offers the newest reliable information on such subjects as foods and nutrition, clothing, housing, home furnishings, equipment, home management — including long-range planning — health and safety, child care and development, family relationships, family economics, good business practices, marketing and consumer buying, and public affairs.

Aims of National Home Demonstration Week: To further acquaint the general public with the Cooperative Extension Service and its home demonstration program planned by and for homemakers.

To help families understand better their part in planning and carrying out the extension program.

To stress research that relates to the home and family and to encourage homemakers to put research findings into use.

To interpret to people the scope of home economics and its coatribution to family and community life.

To recognize the work of volunteer leaders without whose services the home demonstration program would not benefit as many families as now.

To inform people about the duties of their local home demonstration agent, and how to take advantage of her assistance.

How the Week Will Be Observed: Locally, plans will include events such as tours, achievement days, houses, and demonstrations. Purpose will be to inform other homemakers about this educational program and the help they may receive from it. Extension workers and homemakers will be speakers at meetings of civic and service clubs, schools and churches, farm organizations, and other groups. Newspapers and radio and television stations will carry news and features about the work in their areas. Exhibits illustrating typical and outstanding activities will be prepared and displayed in store windows and other prominent places.

How Home Demonstration Work Is Conducted: The way home demonstration work is carried on varies with the needs and desires of the participants, and the areas where they live. Intensive education is carried out through more than 66,000 home demonstration clubs and similar organizations in all 48 States, Alaska, Hawaii, and Puerto Rico. These homemaker groups select their own volunteer local leaders, of whom there are now nearly 700,000.

Leaders are trained and aided by home demonstration agents who are in constant touch with sources of the latest research and information, and who provide professional guidance for the entire program. These leaders contribute greatly to the development of better homes and communities. They give of themselves capably and generously to bring the findings of science into the home and extend the skill and knowledge of a limited number of home demonstration agents.

In addition to their work during the past year with groups — comprising more than 1½ million women — home demonstration agents directly or indirectly assisted more than 5 million other homemakers in improving homemaking skills. They demonstrated new methods, visited families to advise on individual plans and problems, and appeared on radio and television programs to describe and show more efficient practices.

More information on home demonstration work or National Home Demonstration Week may be obtained from county home demonstration agents, who usually have their offices in county-seat towns; the Cooperative Extension Service of the State land-grant college; or the Federal Extension Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, Washington 25, D.C. National administrator of the Federal Extension Service is C. M. Ferguson, and the agency's director of home economics programs is Miss Frances Scudder.
